DEFEATING DEPRAVITY

Breaking the stranglehold of pornography

DEFEAT OF PORNOGRAPHY | Fourth in a four-part series

Government works to shut down thousands of child pornography sites

In the last year alone, The United States Internet Crime Task Force (USICT) has helped shut down 50,000 chatrooms and child pornography sites on the Web. They work with Microsoft, with state government, federal government, the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children and private organizations to monitor and filter the Internet in what proves to be tedious work.

Dave Evangelista, founder and executive director of the three-year-old task force, wanted to enlist the community's help. Part of the organization's cause is a complaint department.

"We get complaints from everything from spam to actual criminal offenses. We have to pare down that complaint list. We get a lot of complaints about adult porn. Unfortunately that's not illegal."

The task force averages 50 legitimate complaints a month.

As many as nine in 10 children ages, 8-16, have viewed pornography online, most accidentally while doing homework, according to the NOP Research Group. Some sites are deliberately misleading in their names, attempting to lure children and teens.

Evangelista wants to make arrests. He is a police officer in Radcliff, Ky., where former Radcliff Police Chief John Farrelly was sentenced for receiving child pornography on a computer.

But Evangelista also wants to head off the problem. He cautions parents to be vigilant, watching over their children's computer usage, supervising, restricting and checking up.

Not only are unwanted images dangerous for children, but unwanted contact from sexual predators is as well.

SIGNS YOUR CHILD IS AT RISK ON-LINE

- Your child spends large amounts of time on -line, especially at night.
- You find pornography on your child's computer.
- Your child receives phone calls from men you don't know or is making calls, sometimes long distance, to numbers you don't recognize.
- Your child receives mail, gifts or packages from someone you don't know.
- Your child turns the computer monitor off or quickly changes the screen on the monitor when you come into the room.
- Your child becomes withdrawn from the family.
- Your child is using an on-line account belonging to someone else.
